Effective at 12:01 am on June 4, 2025, the U.S. government implemented a 50% tariff on all steel and aluminum imports, with the exception of products of the United Kingdom which remain at 25%. This measure is intended to safeguard domestic industries from unfair trade practices and address global overcapacity. Subsequently, on June 28, 2025, a 200% tariff was imposed on all aluminum articles and derivative products where the country of smelt or cast is unidentified.

Key specifics:

• Steel Imports

- Tariffs on steel articles and steel derivatives subject to Section 232 are generally 50% ^{1,2}
- Products of the United Kingdom, subject to Section 232, have a duty rate of 25% ^{1,2}
- This duty only applies to the value of the steel content ^{3,4}

• Aluminum Imports

- Tariffs on aluminum articles and aluminum derivatives subject to Section 232 are generally 50% ^{1,2}
- Products of the United Kingdom subject to Section 232, have a duty rate of 25% ^{1,2}
- Products of Russia and products of unknown country of cast or smelt, subject to Section 232, have a duty rate 200%, applied to the full value of the imported article ¹
- This duty only applies to the value of the aluminum content ⁴

Commodities within this shipment were classified using a tariff number(s) on the steel or aluminum list, which requires Section 232 additional duty. To better serve you, additional information regarding your commodities is required.
